TO THE PEOPLE OF THE SEVENTH JEDICIAL DISTRICT.

A other topics having been absorbed by the de-A jerate strongle in which our whole scenirs is in adverded notwithstanding which the layers adder feels some as lighting about those who are to fill the rivin positions at home. We have often heard it said "tree right may in the richt place." The adags was never in refally exempted by the people at tome than in presenting the name of Major R. W. Upshaw to the where of our district same suitable person to fill the po-sition of Great Judge. The major resumed home wise to remain larger in the service lest a similar misfortune should be full him in the loss of the ather eye. If the young men of the 17 h Mississippi regiment by whom Major Upshaw is known and loved so well, could have a voice in this election they would march to the poils as a unit for him and him alone. If the fulners of these young men do no give Major Upshaw not only their voices but their main ance and influence, they will prove uncarieful to a man who has been as a father to their children in their result and band shops includent to camp life. His nurse has ever tone open to amply their wants, and his learn ever ready to sympathine with their trials and troubles. The weary and sick solder has never parted from him with a chilling rebulks, but has ever received from him manifests. There is a linderes and love.
